

Ambassador Program

What Is a Center for the Arts Ambassador?

The Ambassador is a vital part of the Center for the Arts. The Ambassador's primary goal is to increase awareness about the Center. Ambassadors represent the Center at meetings and events around the region where they will define the Center's mission as well as present opportunities for membership and volunteering.

Why Are Ambassadors Important?

Increased community awareness is vital to making the Center a reality. It is the Ambassadors who spread the word about the Center's mission and the exciting developments taking place.

What Are the Benefits of Being an Ambassador?

Being an Ambassador is fun and interesting. Ambassadors have the chance to meet all kinds of people; learn about area groups they may not have known about; expand their awareness and interests; and become a part of something great which will result in a vibrant and creative center in the near future. When the day comes to cut the ribbon, ambassadors will know they were a part of bringing something wonderful to the region.

What is Expected of an Ambassador?

Ambassadors are expected to:

- Attend a 90 minute training session;
- Become familiar with the information and materials they will be presenting to the public;
- Represent the Center for the Arts in a professional and courteous manner;
- Complete a short Presentation Report Form after each presentation;

What Can Ambassadors Expect From the Center for the Arts?

Ambassadors can expect the Center for the Arts staff to:

- Assist the Ambassador in any way necessary including accompanying them to their first presentation;
- Always respect the ambassador's wishes in regards to how often and when they are available;
